

THE VIRTUAL MAGIC KINGDOM DATABASE

Presented by ElectricLime

Here is a list of every item<sup>[1]</sup> in the Virtual Magic Kingdom database as of the end of the last day of operation.

The items here are grouped by type and sorted by item number. In general, lower-numbered items in a group came first.

There are four columns for each table:

- the item number (which you would never see in the game);
- the item name exactly as it existed in the database (and, yes, some of these are weird);
- the price of the item (it could be sold back for one-fifth of this); and
- a "no" if the item was not tradeable to other players.

If an item lacks a price, that means the game would not let you sell it back.

Remember that many of these items were used in public rooms and game rooms and were never intended to be owned by players, even if they are tradable or even have prices associated with them (such as the checkers and the Gator Waiter). Many of these items were never seen at all. I present this list as-is. Make your own best guesses!

DELETED ITEMS

These items showed up in the database in June 2006, and then disappeared that October without ever having been seen. They were probably being developed as tie-ins with the Cars movie release before they were scrapped.

NOTES

1. Except the VMK Stories items. VMK Stories deserves its own list.
2. Notice that the names of many of the first 64 items are almost in alphabetical order. And for the ones that don't fit alphabetically, it's not hard to think of obvious alternate names which would fit. Maybe Stitch's Teleporter started out as "Alien Teleporter" while it was in development? Maybe item 5 was "Asteroid Couch"? And item 7 was "Boat Teleporter"? And after items 21-23 which start with F, G, and H, perhaps item 24 was originally just an "Island Tee Pee"? Could it be that the first batch of items were listed alphabetically in the VMK database early in development, and renamed later?
3. Yes, the name of the pin contains the word "DELETED". I assume that for some reason the developers decided to abandon item 2180 without deleting it from the database, and to use 2189 instead. Only Yavn knows for sure.
4. I have no idea what "music" was. I'm guessing it's a placeholder word for something to be renamed later. Given the number, was it going to be another NPC to click on in a new land?
